The Transition movement is a grass roots initiative that seeks to address the issues of the overdependence on fossil fuels and climate change. We need to find ways to, harness our dwindling resources, create more renewable ones, and through working together, plan for a controlled energy descent to a post-oil economy. Everyone can become involved in this process, because everyone has something to contribute and since none has the answer to these problems, we must all work to discover it for ourselves!

Transition Malvern Hills, through this process, brings communities together, forming groups, developing skills and taking practical action to combat these challenges we face.

The Transition movement can help you find practical ways to improve your own quality of life while helping the planet - from joining a car club to cutting your heating bills.
